

DLF ANNOUNCE: The Digital Library Federation listserv

The Digital Library Federation (<http://www.diglib.org/>) is a consortium of thirty-seven libraries and related agencies that pioneer the use of information technologies to extend, share, and manage their collections and services. Through its members, the DLF provides leadership for libraries broadly by:

- identifying standards and formulating best practices for digital collections and networked access
- coordinating leading-edge research and development in the use of information technology
- developing projects and services that libraries need but cannot develop individually

The best way to keep up with the DLF's initiatives, Forums, calls for collaboration, and news is to subscribe to the DLF ANNOUNCE listserv, available to all members and selected guests.

To subscribe, send an email to the following address:
listserv@listserv.cdinet.com
